BOOTH & BARRETT in the "MERCHANT OF VENICE."

Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett and their full dramatic company will begin their much-talked-of engagement at English's Opera-house to-night. This, the most notable dramatic event of the season, promises to be signified by the attendance of large and fashionable audiences. There is a large advance sale of seats, although excellent locations can yet be secured, the demand from out of town being particularly great. This will doubtless be the last opportunity theater-goers here will have to see Mr. Booth and his company, as the "Merchant of Venice" will be given on a scale of great elaboration and beauty, with Mr. Booth as Shylock and Mr. Barrett as Bassanio. The play will be given in its entirety, with the same scenic accessories as were employed in the New York production, and a cast of forty people. At the matinee to-morrow Mr. Booth will be the Hamlet, with Mr. Barrett as Laertes, and to-morrow night the engagement will close with a double bill, "The Fool's Revenge" and "Yorkick's Love."

Admission tickets, entitling the holders to standing-room and all seats not occupied after the first act, will be sold to-night at 75c for the lower floor, 75 cents balcony, and 50 cents gallery.

Hunting for Snipes.
 A party consisting of W. D. Bynum, W. B. Allen, W. H. Coburn, J. F. Holliday and Harry J. Spann left last night on the Big Four for the Kanawha swamps, where they will put in the time until Monday in snipe shooting.

FAILURE OF A GAS COMPANY

The Broad Ripple's Embarrassed Affairs to Be Adjusted by Receiver Scholl.

Suit Brought by a Bank Causes One of the Company's Directors to Go Into Court for Relief—Statements from Its Officers.

A suit filed in Judge Howe's room yesterday brought to light the financial embarrassment of the Broad Ripple Natural Gas Company. Omar A. Boardman, in his complaint, stated that the company's affairs are such that a receiver is an absolute necessity. It owes, he said, $12,500 on first mortgage bonds executed in September, 1888, payable in five years thereafter at 6 per cent. The indebtedness in unsecured debts, besides this amount, is in excess of $45,000, over $40,000 of which is evidenced by commercial paper executed by the company. A part of this paper is over due, and the remainder is to mature shortly. On last Wednesday suit was brought against the company by the Meridian National Bank, holding $8,000 of the paper, to force the property to be sold under execution. Plaintiff Boardman states that other suits are liable to follow, and that there will be no way for the company to meet its indebtedness unless a receiver is appointed. The company, through its attorney, Augustus B. Young, filed an answer to this complaint, acknowledging all of the charges, and petitioning that a receiver be named. The court appointed Charles Scholl, book-keeper for the company, who qualified on giving a $35,000 bond.

The Broad Ripple Company was one of the first of its kind organized in the city. Among its stockholders were two or three gentlemen who had interests in the Indianapolis Gas Company. They went into it as did the others of the original company, more to prospect for gas in the vicinity of Indianapolis than for piping and furnishing a general supply. This prospecting, however, did not satisfy all who were concerned, but despite the seeming inferiority of the wells at Broad Ripple and in that neighborhood, Omar A. Boardman, a Boardman and E. A. Mans finally secured control of the company. Operations that had been in progress toward furnishing the city with gas for fuel and illumination were extended. The capital stock being $100,000. The majority of the stock, though, through this change, went into the hands of two of the directors, and it has been through their failure to get the co-operation of the other stockholders that the company has been finally compelled to ask for a receiver.

"The fact that we have been compelled to ask for a receiver," said one of the directors last night, "will be a bad thing for the city I am afraid. The one great trouble with us has been the low prices charged for natural gas. We have made a good showing from the very first, as evidenced by the fact that local affairs know we have had applications from consumers whom we could not accommodate. We have had no difficulties in getting consumers, but our receipts have been small. We were the first to organize, the first to pipe gas to the city and the first to fail—so we can claim credit in all the events connected with natural gas in this city."

"What can be said to be the immediate cause of your inability to continue business?"

"When we first organized, or soon afterward at least, seven-tenths of the stock was, and is now, owned by the Westcotts. We spent $28,000 in extension of our works, of which $125,000 was issued in bonds, and although we had a capital stock of $100,000, the Westcotts held a mortgage on the $125,000, and after that, the company contributed no more to the workings of the company unless the other stockholders would pay their share. This they did not feel like doing, and so the thing stopped right there."

Charles Scholl, the receiver, has been an assistant secretary of the company for a little over a year. He stated last night that a settlement will be made as soon as possible. "Our records have been very good up to the present time, and we have issued a circular giving a statement of condition. In it we state that bills payable and accounts amount to $45,157.20, for a part of which provision should be made at once. It is proposed by parties owning the majority of the capital stock, that they would furnish 60 per cent. of the indebtedness if the remaining stockholders would consent to raise 40 per cent. This proposition is to be submitted to the stockholders at a meeting next Tuesday afternoon."

"How do the accounts stand at present?"

"In the circular we have issued we give a complete statement of our finances. We have $144.61 as cash on hand, with real estate valued at $800. Our plant from our organization to Jan. 1, 1889, yields $28,728.28, and from Jan. 1 to April 15, 1889, $17,617.63. On the other hand, we have bills payable amounting to $44,108.14, with personal accounts of $1,049.15. The capital stock put down at $100,000, of which $67,000 is owned by Westcott and his son. The trust mortgage bonds amount to $125,000. From Jan. 1, 1889, to April 15, our receipts for gas were $15,083.49."

"What do you intend to do as your first step toward a settlement?"

"The plans of the company are very unsettled. I was only appointed receiver this afternoon, and I cannot say what I shall first do. We will begin from the very first and go through the investigation of our affairs as thoroughly as possible, but what the final outcome will be I am now unable to say." The company's consumers have been mostly in the northwestern part of the city, where these only one or two were manufacturers. It is not known what will be done in regard to continuing the supply, although it is claimed the company is embarrassed with a scarcity of wells or a lack of gas in those that have heretofore been in operation. The company has sunk about twenty wells, each of which averages a daily gas yield of 800,000 to 1,000,000 feet a day, and some of them are lying in territory along the Allisonville pike, in the vicinity of Castleton and Noblesville.

What Mr. Westcott Says.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.
 RICHMOND, Ind., April 18.—This evening a Journal correspondent met J. M. Westcott just after he had received a telegram announcing that the Broad Ripple Natural Gas Company had gone into the hands of a receiver, and he manifested as little concern as though he had no interest in it. When asked as to the future of the company, he said: "I do not know what will be the plan now, nor am I worried about it, although I hold about $60,000 worth of stock as well as considerable of the company's bonds. I told the company last January I did not propose to furnish any more money unless the other stockholders furnished their proportion, and refused to endorse the company's paper, and that has been my position ever since. At the meeting on the 16th it was exhibited that the company's liabilities were $45,177.20. I proposed to furnish my 60 per cent. of it if the others would give 40 per cent., and this was left for determination at a meeting to be held on the 23d. What will be done I don't know, but I know if I lose every dollar I have in the company it will not hurt me very much, and I do not propose to put up for the whole company."

"The Meridian National Bank thought it would bulldoze me into endorsing the company's paper held by it, thinking I could not afford with my large interest in the company not to protect its good name; but I concluded the situation might as well assume shape now as any time. As a matter of fact, however, I believe the Broad Ripple is in 100 per cent. better shape than the other Indianapolis companies, and had the bank carried the $8,000 worth of paper it has been carrying, it would have been paid out of the company's receipts within sixty to ninety days, but it refused to do it. The bank was induced last summer when the company wanted to borrow about $5,000 of the Meridian National; it then said we could have all we wanted if I would endorse the paper. I refused on the ground that I would not endorse any paper and never asked any one to endorse mine, adding that if the bank would not favor the company on its own paper the company could go without. The bank loaned me the money, and in December let the company have $5,000 more. Just before I went to Mexico, the latter part of February, I said to Mr. Maus, our secretary, that we must prepare to meet the paper. Part of it had previously been renewed once or twice, and the bank said it would renew it again, but when it came to doing it, it refused, unless Mr. Maus or myself would endorse it. Notwithstanding, Mr. Maus had, the meanwhile, while the bank was carrying the paper past due, borrowed $3,000 more on a demand note without endorsement, which he paid out of the receipts, and that is what we proposed to do with this $3,000 as I said, within sixty to ninety days; but last week the bank asked me to endorse the notes on renewal, and when I again refused on the same ground as before, it I suppose, then determined to make trouble as it declined to accept a demand note for it with the assurance it would be paid from the receipts as the other was, and then it was that the bank hoped to bulldoze me into it to protect the company's credit, but my mind was made up. I proposed to pay in my 60 per cent. if the other shareholders were up to the remainder, and to do nothing more."

TOM JOHNSON'S MANEUVERS.

He Has Decided to Let the Streets Alone Until the Supreme Court Settles the Question.

The Johnson-Dudley Street-railway Company did not resume operations on Michigan street yesterday morning, as was predicted by some of its managers when the work was stopped, Wednesday evening, by the city authorities. The conflict of authority is not so much over a right of way in regard to any particular street, as to whether or not the charter which the company claims to possess can be repealed, it being held by the company's attorneys that such cannot be. "But we hold that they are wrong," said City Attorney Taylor, yesterday. "This question has been up in the courts, and they have decided against the Johnson company. It seems to me that ought to settle it."

"Have you issued any orders in regard to the trouble?"

"Yes, I gave orders to the foreman who had the work in charge, to put the street back in the condition in which he found it, and he did it this morning. I think the company only tried to fasten its claims on the city, preparatory to taking the matter to the Supreme Court, which will be done. There was no intention, I think, to really build a track, for the company has no material in the city to carry out any extensive work. It only wanted to see what action the city would take. Everything is closed up now, though, and will remain so until the Supreme Court renders a decision."

Incidents at Fires.

The residence of W. W. Herod, 731 North Meridian street, was damaged to the extent of $2,500 yesterday morning by a fire originating from a defective gas fitting. The loss is covered by insurance. While working on the burning building, Chas. E. Wesley, of No. 6 engine-house, fell through the roof into the attic, receiving serious though not fatal injuries. Before the fire was extinguished, another broke out in the bakery of Charles Hespelt, 373 Virginia avenue, caused by an overheated oven, and doing $50 damage. Between 7 and 8 o'clock last night some passers-by discovered what the look for smoke issuing from the steeple of the German Evangelical Association's church, corner of East and New York streets, and, supposing it to be burning on the inside, turned in an alarm. The dependant of the church, however, found no traces of fire or smoke, and the commonly accepted theory was that sparrows had carried some matches to their nests, and, as the steeple of the church was made of straw, as bits of burnt straw were found on the sidewalk. During the excitement in the vicinity of the church, a boy eleven years of age, named Harry, received a peculiar wound. He wore a waist without coat or vest, which was fastened together in front with a long needle, and, in the crowd, it was forced into his breast to a depth of an inch or more. It caused him considerable suffering until it was withdrawn by Dr. Belt.

But One Witness Against Him.

Probably one of the happiest homes in the city to-day is that of John Daglish, who was acquitted Wednesday of the charge of murdering Thomas Downey. The case, as was shown by the evidence produced both by the State and the defense, was a most peculiar one. Although young Daglish, who is a mere boy, told a story on the night of the killing which was proved to be true by the verdict of the jury, the circumstances surrounding the case were so strong that the State's attorneys considered his case a certain one. The main witness upon whom the State had depended to base its stronger case, however, was shown to have so changed his version of the killing from time to time that her testimony was completely shaken by the defense, with much good effect on the jury. The first story of this witness was that Daglish himself told, and on which he was acquitted, namely, that Downey had been strangled by an unknown man in company with another man and two women. The result, afterward, however, she made what was at first supposed to be a confession, in which she said that no other parties were present; that the story of the four other persons was a hoax, and that she had seen Daglish draw a dagger, and it was in the belief that she was a Turkish slave, that she had argued the result. The result, however, seems to give general satisfaction.

Affairs of the Churches.

A free social will occur to-night at Roberts Park Church. Music, recitations and other interesting exercises will fill out the programme.

The Flower Cantata will be given by the Earnest Workers' Mission band, at the Central Christian Church this evening. Miss Maud Lucas will take the part of the rose; Miss Adelaide Rogers, sunflower; Helen Cole, crocus; Edna Smith, dahlia; Edna Scott, Japanese lily; Edna Scott, touch-me-not; and Edna Azbill, tulip. While Miss Lucas will take the part of the rose.

The Good Friday services to-day at Grace Church will be: Morning service, with sermon, 10:30; three-hour service, conducted by Bishop Knickerbocker, 12 to 3; children's service, 4:30; union service, sermon by Rev. Dr. Jencks, 7:30.

The programme for the Easter services to be held at Plymouth Church next Sunday was issued yesterday. Anthems and hymns will be sung, with appropriate scriptural readings. The service will be held at 10:30, and confirmation services will also be followed out in addition to the regular sermon. In the evening Rev. Myron W. Reid will occupy the pulpit.

Centennial Committee.

The executive committee, in whose charge are left the arrangements for the Washington inaugural celebration, held a meeting yesterday in the court-house, but owing to the absence of some of the members no important steps were taken. It was decided to do every thing possible to make the day a successful one, and to this end invitations will be issued to all organized bodies in the city urging them to participate. "It is to be a day," said Colonel Walker, "when all Americans should join out, regardless of their personal beliefs."

Postoffice Appointments.

William R. Carson, of Southport, was appointed canceling clerk in the postoffice yesterday, vice Andrew Auch, who resigned before Mr. Jones's term as postmaster expired. The appointment was made under the civil-service rules. The commissions of the chief engineer, elevator man and janitors for the building are expected to arrive from Washington to-day, but the appointments will not begin work until May 1.

Not Satisfied with the Conditions.

The County Commissioners were yesterday informed by the Citizens' Street-railway Company that the conditions, as prescribed by the board, for the laying of double tracks to Crown Hill, were not such as would warrant operations. A petition from citizens on the route proposed was presented, asking for the extension without holding the company to the rigid terms of the grant.

The Physio-Medical Society.
 The monthly meeting of the Physio-Medical society, of this city, was held at Dr. Woodard's office last evening. In the election of officers for the ensuing year, Prof. G. H. Davidson was selected as chairman, and Dr. Anthony, secretary. There was considerable discussion of medical topics, and the society adjourned to meet on the 2d prox.

John Edwards's Death.
 John Edwards, who has been a city bill poster here since 1878, died at his residence No. 259 South Alabama street yesterday, leaving a wife, but no child. He had a good reputation for reliability, and earned a competency by close attention to business.

His Single Redeeming Trait.

Chicago Herald.
 "One of the best-known drunkards and bar-room loafers" in Philadelphia is dead. He was a goat named, like other goats, "Billy." He was expert in the use of whiskey and beer, seldom went to bed sober, and, according to that reliable Republican paper, the Philadelphia Press, always voted the Democratic ticket—a habit which seems to have been the single redeeming trait of his character.
